

Facilitator – About Shari Hildred, PMP

Shari Hildred is the owner of Valmore Consulting and focuses her work in the non-profit sector. She is a facilitator, professional and leadership instructor with the University of Regina and she provides management services to a number of non-profit clients in Regina, across Saskatchewan and across Canada.

Shari draws on expertise gained from over 25 years in the private, public and non-profit sectors, which include working with countless non-profits in the sport, cultural, recreation, arts, heritage, social inclusion, First Nations, disability, humanitarian, human justice and health sectors; along with as many years presenting, facilitating and educating.

Shari works with non-profits that range in size from large corporate entities to small, local grass roots organizations. Regardless of size, Shari is committed to assisting organizations in developing best practices and processes to run effective and efficient operations and to deliver programs and services that support community.

Shari is a designated Project Management Professional (PMP). She has studied Cultural Resource Management at the University of Victoria, completed Art of the Executive Leader training at Banff Centre for the Arts, and, studied public policy at the UofR Jonhson-Shoyama Graduate School of Public Policy.

Shari is a lifelong learner and continues to research and document knowledge acquired from her work. Some of her most notable achievements include: recipient of City of Regina Municipal Heritage Award in the Category of Education and recipient of Lieutenant Governor of Saskatchewan Heritage Excellence Award for outstanding contributions in conservation of Saskatchewan's built heritage.
