

Upcoming Training

FOR SPORT, CULTURE & RECREATION
PROGRAM LEADERS

PLAY LEADERSHIP & Principles of Healthy Child Development (PHCD)

PLAY LEADERSHIP - What is it?

This one-day training provides Play Leaders with the knowledge and skills they need to plan and coordinate safe, accessible, and fun play opportunities for children. It focuses on the benefits of play for children and youth, communities, and society as a whole. The training is supplemental to the HIGH FIVE® Principles of Healthy Child Development (PHCD) workshop. All participants must have previously been trained in PHCD.

Principles of Healthy Child Development - What is it?

Front-line leaders will gain the skills to make certain each child's social, emotional, and cognitive needs are met. The session focuses on incorporating the HIGH FIVE® Principles into everyday programming. Leaders learn activities, gain knowledge, tips and resources to enhance their programs and their relationships with the participants and staff.

Who is it for?

Front line workers and anyone working with children aged 6 to 12 in a sport and recreation environment.

Why does it matter?

Leaders have a major impact on a child's sport and recreation experience. This training is based on research and has been designed to equip leaders with activities, knowledge, tips and resources to enhance their programs as well as their relationships with children and other staff members.

Learning Objectives

After completing Play Leadership, you will:

- Understand what's needed to support the goals of their community recreation program
- Know how to coordinate safe and accessible play opportunities
- Develop strategies to address the cultural, behavioural, physical, and personal needs of children
- Have the skills and knowledge to plan and coordinate free, creative, and active play opportunities
- Recognize and model the characteristics of a successful Play Leader
